

Prophecy by Gareth Duffty 13 Jan 08

What a season I have before you says the Lord, what a day I have brought you to says the Lord. Now I would have you to come and see it, so open your eyes that you may see what vistas and what mountains and what valleys that I have made before this season ahead. For I have got a great season for you says God, for it will be a season of advance one step at a time, but it will be a season that I have given you, for I am a God that breaks in and opens a door for you this day. For I will open a door, not only a door of great victory and a great shout, but a door where if you withhold me I will take the door away and I will break in on you says God. For the very thing you have held back I will break over and the very thing you have cried for I will break in on says God. For the season I have put before you is a season designed by me. It's a new day, a day of my way say the Lord. Now see what I see, come and stand where I stand, that you may see the vistas of the season ahead of you, because it's a season of great joy, it's a season of great advance, a season of great leaving aside to go forwards says the Lord, for I am standing before you as an open door this morning. For where the door was ajar I pushed it wide, for where the door was open and you feared to walk in I will give you courage to walk in says your God. Now see the open door I have made for you, because it is my season and will I not hold you as you walk through, will I not draw you as you walk through, for it is my season, my day and what a year we shall have, says the Lord.
